Change of Polling Place Signage

Of the 29 counties with changed polling places for the 2024 Republican Presidential Preference Primary, all except 2 had a change of polling place sign present at the previous polling place. It should be noted that there were reports from counties on election day that signage had been removed by the public, which may be the reason signage was not present at the polling places we visited in these two counties.

Teams of auditors visited select previous polling places in each of the 29 counties on election day to determine if a change of polling place sign was present, contained the new polling place and the telephone number of the county office, and was readable from 20 feet. While most counties had signage, the biggest issue with many signs was that the county office telephone number was not listed.

Providing signage at a previous polling place of a polling place change ensures such changes are adequately communicated to voters, and they have access to the polls.

State Law Requirements

For the presidential preference primaries, counties were encouraged to combine polling places pursuant to state law. Specifically, S.C. Code §7-11-20(B)(2)(a) states:

...the State Election Commission and the authorities responsible for conducting the elections in each county shall provide for cost-effective measures in conducting the presidential preference primaries including, but not limited to, combining polling places, while ensuring that voters have adequate notice and access to the polling places...

If a polling place is changed, S.C. Code §7-7-15 requires the entity charged with conducting the election at the polling place—the county—to post a notice on or next to the door of the entrance of the previous polling place. The notice must be in large enough letters to be read easily by a person with normal vision from a distance of at least 20 feet and contain the:

- Place of the new polling place.
- Address of the entity in charge of the election.
- Telephone number of the entity in charge of the election.

One sign that meets all these requirements is adequate signage.

SEC Guidance

The State Election Commission (SEC) provided guidance to counties regarding change of polling place signage during a training workshop in November 2023. The SEC also provided posters to counties for use during the presidential preference primaries, including sizes 8.5x11, 8.5x14, and 24x36. Figure 1 provides a visual of this poster. These posters contained prompts to fill in the name and address of the new polling place as well as the county office phone number. Use of this specific sign was optional.

The sign is a vertical rectangular poster. At the top, a dark blue box contains the text "For the Republican Presidential Primary ONLY." in white, bold, sans-serif font. Below this, the text "This polling place has been moved to:" is centered in a dark blue, sans-serif font. Underneath, "The address is:" is also centered in the same dark blue font. A red rectangular box contains the text "For more information, contact your County Voter Registration and Elections Office." in white, sans-serif font. Below this, "Phone:" is written in white. At the bottom of the red box, "SC Code of Laws 7-7-15" is written in white. At the very bottom of the sign, three logos are displayed: the South Carolina Election Commission logo, the "every vote matters. every vote counts." logo, and the "scVOTES.gov" website address.

Unannounced Visits

For our review, we identified counties that had combined polling places for the Republican Presidential Preference Primary held on Saturday, February 24, 2024. According to the voter registration and election management system and county websites, 29 of the 46 counties had combined polling places for this election. For each of these counties, teams of auditors conducted unannounced visits to select previous polling places on election day to determine if a change of polling place sign was present on or near the door, contained the new polling place and the telephone number of the county office, and was readable from 20 feet. Since SEC guidance did not prompt counties to list the county office address on the agency-designed poster, we did not evaluate counties on whether this information was present.

Auditors photographed signage at the polling place, with at least one picture of the signage from 20 feet. The view in these pictures, however, was not the same as the in-person view. Readability was evaluated by two auditors, and the results of readability should be based on the auditors' assessment rather than the pictures.

It should also be noted that several counties had more than one sign at the polling place. State law, however, requires only one sign.

Lastly, there were reports from several counties on election day that change of polling place signs had been removed by the public. As such, the absence of these signs may not necessarily indicate that the county did not post a change of polling place sign. Two of the 29 counties did not have signs when we visited.

Providing signage at a previous polling place of a polling place change ensures such changes are adequately communicated to voters, and they have access to the polls.

The following pages provide the results for each visit.

The Chesterfield precinct is located at 300 S Market St., but the actual polling location is the gym at the back of the church. The gym is a standalone building that shares the address of the church. A large A frame sign was placed at the gym entrance which is located on White St. next to the library. A sign was also taped on the door. We verified that the signs were placed in the correct location on the property on Election Day. The signs were picked up from the location after the election. Our office follows SC code of law and all guidance from the South Carolina State Election Commission.
